OUR PLEDGE REGARDING HEALTHCARE INFORMATION

We understand that healthcare information about you and your health is personal. We are committed to protecting healthcare information about you. We create a record of the care and services you receive at TTC. We need this record to provide you with quality care and to comply with certain legal requirements. This Notice applies to all of the records of your care generated by TTC. Your hospital may have different policies or notices regarding the hospital or doctor's use and disclosure of your healthcare information created in the clinic or personal doctor.

This Notice will tell you about the ways in which we may use and disclose healthcare information about you. It also describes your rights and certain obligations we have regarding the use and disclosure of healthcare information.

We are required by law to:

- Make sure that healthcare information that identifies you is kept private (with certain exceptions that are listed below);
- Make available to you this Notice of our legal duties and privacy practices with respect to healthcare information about you; and
- Follow the terms of the Notice that is currently in effect. (This Notice may change, in the manner described below under "CHANGES TO THIS NOTICE")

HOW WE MAY USE AND DISCLOSE HEALTHCARE INFORMATION ABOUT YOU

The following categories describe different ways that we use and disclose healthcare information. For each category of uses or disclosures, we provide examples, but not every use or disclosure in a category is listed. However, all of the ways we are permitted to use and disclose information will fall within one of the categories.

- For Treatment. We may use healthcare information about you to provide you with healthcare treatment or services. We may disclose healthcare information about you to doctors, nurses, technicians, mental health professionals, or other hospital personnel who are involved in taking care of you at a hospital. For example, a doctor treating you for a broken leg may need to know if you have diabetes because diabetes may slow the healing process. In addition, the doctor may need to tell the dietitian if you have diabetes so that we can arrange for appropriate meals, Different departments also may share healthcare information about you among themselves, in order to coordinate the different things you need, such as prescriptions, lab work and X-rays. We also may disclose healthcare information about you to people outside the healthcare group who may be involved in your healthcare, such as family members or others we use to provide services that are part of your care.

- For Payment. We may use and disclose healthcare information about you so that the treatment and services you receive at TTC may be billed to and payment may be collected from you, an insurance company or a third party. For example, we may need to give your health plan information about surgery you received at a hospital so your health plan will pay us or reimburse you for the surgery. We may also tell your health plan about a treatment you are going to receive in order to obtain prior approval or to determine whether your plan will cover the treatment.
- For Health Care Operations. We may use and disclose healthcare information about you for TTC operations. These uses and disclosures are necessary to run TTC and ensure that all of our patients receive quality care. For example, we may use healthcare information to review our treatment and services and to evaluate the performance of our staff in caring for you. We may also combine healthcare information about many TTC patients to decide what additional services TTC should offer, what services are not needed, and whether certain new treatment are effective. We may also disclose information to doctors, nurses, technicians, medical students, and other TTC personnel for review and learning purposes. We may also combine the healthcare information we have with healthcare information from other medical groups to compare how we are doing and see where we can make improvements in the care and services we offer. We may remove information that identifies you from this set of healthcare information, so others may use it to study healthcare and healthcare delivery without learning whom the specific patient is.
- Appointment Reminders. We may use and disclose healthcare information to contact you as a reminder that you have an appointment for treatment or healthcare at TTC.
- Treatment Alternatives. We may use and disclose healthcare information to contact you and recommend possible treatment options or alternatives that may be of interest to you.
- Health-Related Products and Services. We may use and disclose healthcare information to tell you about health-related benefits or services that may be of interest to you.
- Individuals Involved in Your Care or Payment for Your Care. We may release healthcare information about you to a friend or family member who is involved in your healthcare only with your written permission.
- Research. Under certain circumstances, we may use and disclose healthcare information about you for research purposes. For example, a research project may involve comparing the health and recovery of all patients who received one medication to those who received another, for the same condition. All research projects, however, are subject to a special approval process. This process evaluates a proposed research project and its use of healthcare information, trying to balance the research needs with patient's need for privacy of their healthcare information. Before we use or disclose healthcare information for research being conducted, the project will have been approved through this research approval process. However, we may disclose healthcare information about you to people preparing to conduct a research project, for example, to help them look for patients with specific healthcare needs, so long as the healthcare information they review does not leave TTC. We will always ask for your specific information that reveals who you are, or will be involved in your care at TTC.
- As Required By Law. We will disclose healthcare information about you when required to do so by federal, state or local law.
- To Avert a Serious Threat to Health or Safety. We may use and disclose healthcare information about you when necessary to prevent a serious threat to your health and safety or the health and safety of the public or another person. Any disclosure, however, would only be to someone able to help prevent this threat.
- Special Situations. We may also use and disclose healthcare information about you in the situations described under "SPECIAL SITUATIONS" below.

OTHER USES OF HEALTHCARE INFORMATION

Other new uses and disclosures of healthcare information not covered by this Notice or the laws that apply to us will be made only with your written authorization. A form for those authorizations, both those that you request and those that we request, is available from our Health Information Management Office at the location noted on the first page. If you give us an authorization, you may later revoke that permission in writing, at any time. If you revoke your permission, we will no longer disclose medical information about you for the reasons covered by your written authorization.
